LaFollette "War Chest" $3,000,000

...ire to Secure Enormous Fund to Be Directed Among Labor Unions and Farm Organizations — Campaign Opens Labor Day.

(By Kenneth Clark.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 25.—Within 24 hours after its appointment, the "Board of Strategy" of the LaFollette-Wheeler presidential drive held its first meeting here today and formally set the progressives campaign in motion.

Plans to raise a campaign "war chest" of at least $3,000,000, drafted by Henry H. Rosenfelt of New York, were accepted by the committee. It was decided that the drive for this fund would be directed chiefly among labor unions, farm organizations, the Socialist party, independent political groups and the general public in the form of "dollar contributions."

Labor Day was set as the time for hiring the first heavy campaign speeches of the drive. It was declared that both Senators LaFollette and Wheeler would make their first important speeches on that day, LaFollette being tentatively scheduled for New York; Wheeler in Boston. This arrangement, however, may be changed.

The question of selecting state leaders for LaFollette and Wheeler came in for consideration. A definite announcement of the names of these chiefs is expected early next week.

How to get the names of the LaFollette and Wheeler electors on the ballots in the various states also was discussed.

Because every important question arising in the campaign must come before it for settlement the committee decided to hold sessions practically every day until after the election.

Friendly Spirit Marks Deadlock

But French Diplomats and Bankers Still Disagree Over Details of $200,000,000 Loan to Germany—Next Plenary Session Monday.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 25.—A spirit of friendliness was the only hopeful sign today in the deadlock between the international bankers' group and the French diplomats over the question of the $200,000,000 loan to Germany under the Dawes plan.

Neither side, however, has yet shown any sign of abandoning its position. Conferences were still under way between various groups in an effort to reach a compromise. Premier Theunis of Belgium was again one of the most active in this direction. He has proposed that the security for the loan be such that it could not possibly be affected by any steps France might take to enforce sanctions on Germany for default in the reparations payments.

Premier Herriot of France and Secretary of State Hughes were to meet at noon today for a conference on the subject. Meantime the Allied Conference committee on sanctions and default is holding sessions with the bankers' representatives before redrafting its report which the bankers objected to. It cannot be said however, that any real progress has been made by the committee.

The committee dealing with the operation of German railroads under the Dawes plan has completed its report, but it cannot be presented to the full conference before next week.

"The conference isn't dead—our attitude is one of restrained confidence."

This attitude was expressed by one of the important participants.

The next plenary session has been set for 4 o'clock Monday when the matter of inviting Germany to participate will be discussed and the report of the committee dealing with the economic rehabilitation of Germany will be presented.

Reports that the conference might be adjourned until autumn were denied on all sides.

The "big five" met for another conference today and the bankers' representatives and financial experts of the conference also held a session.

May Visit Maine On Stumping Tour

Democratic Nominee Davis Tentatively Decides to Campaign There —States Attitude on Klan Issue.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Dark Harbor, Islesboro, Me., July 25.—John W. Davis, Democratic nominee for the presidency, is spending a "systematic vacation" at the estate of Charles Dana Gibson, of Seven Hundred Acre Island, near here.

Order is emperor in the Davis scheme of living and he treats his life here exactly as he does back in Locust Valley, Long Island, where he makes his home.

Lives Simple Life.

He rises early, usually at 6 o'clock, and generally retires about 10 o'clock. The candidate clearly shows he is in love with life. He breathes in the beauty of unsurpassed views up here with quiet satisfaction. He talks with natives, caddies, and sailors in a friendly tone but a tone that never permits familiarity.

And he manages to maintain his schedule in the face of growing demands on his time from political leaders who in ever increasing numbers are seeking out his island retreat.

Boston Caller Cheers Nominee.

Among his latest callers was Andrew J. Peters, formerly mayor of Boston, who brought cheering news to the nominee.

"Davis is going to make a profound impression throughout New England," said Peters, "There is a large body of independent voters in Massachusetts and I believe that state will go for Davis. Political dopesters are overlooking Rhode Island and New Hampshire where Davis has more than a fighting chance.'

The Klan issue also came to the fore today as a result of the visit of William R. Pattangall, Democratic candidate for governor of Maine, who led the fight in the New York convention for an anti-klan plank.

"Four Square" on Klan Plank.

The nominee intimated he stood "four square on the platform." "I arrived there after the fight was over," Davis said, referring to the Klan fight in the convention. "The action of the Democratic convention is the final court."

May Campaign in Maine.

Pattangall impressed the nominee so favorably that it was tentatively decided Davis should include Maine in his stumping tour.

A long distance telephone call from Clem Shaver, Davis's campaign manager, brought the information that organization plans were progressing favorably.

Although the house was filled with smoke, no fire followed. There were several members of the family and boarders in the house, none of whom were injured.

Talked Too Much And It Cost $10

Mrs. May Stanford, a Negress, Discharged When Negro Failed to Appear to Press Charge, but Is Found Guilty of Contempt of Court.

Last week Mrs. May Stanford, a negress, was arrested on the complaint of Calvin Snyder, a negro, who said she cut him under the arm with some instrument—what it was he did not know. The case had been adjourned until this morning in police court at which time Snyder failed to appear to press the charge.

In discharging Mrs. Stanford, Judge Harry E. Schirick warned her to be more careful in the future, and she wanted to argue the question with the judge until he ended the argument by finding her guilty of contempt of court and imposed a fine of $10. She paid.

Soviet May Have Inspired Murder

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 25.—The diplomatic corps is dissatisfied with the Persian government's reply to its collective note of protest following the recent murder of Robert W. Imbrie, American vice consul, by a mob of religious fanatics, according to a dispatch to the Daily Mail today from Teheran.

The government's reply, the dispatch said, disclaimed responsibility for the act and made excuses for the inaction of the police who were reported to have stood by idly and watched the mob beat the American to death and seriously injure Melin Seymour, another American.

The Morning Post quoted a story in the Russian daily, the Russkaya Gazzeta, intimating the murder of Imbrie might have been inspired by Soviet influences. The Morning Post quoted the Russian paper as asserting Imbrie was considered a bitter enemy by the Moscow government and was on the official list of undesirable foreigners.

In 1922, according to the Post, Imbrie frustrated a Soviet plot against him in Angora.

Butler Says He Won't Resign

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Philadelphia, July 25.—General Smedley Butler has served emphatic notice on his political enemies that he has no intention of resigning as director of public safety until his term of office expires.

In a talk here to police inspectors, he spiked rumors that have been going the rounds since his reported break with Mayor Kendrick two weeks ago that he was anxious to return to the marine corps and would not consider remaining here after January 5 next.

"Don't be misled by the idea that I am going to quit," he said today. "I was appointed for four years and I'm going to stay until I'm kicked out."

Butler denied reports that he and Mayor Kendrick are at swords points and called on the men to renew their allegiance to the mayor's announced policies.

Electric Rates Stay at Low Level

Domestic Electric Service Rate in Kingston Remains Same as in 1913 When it was Reduced Although Other Things Cost More.

While food, clothing, housing, fuel, house furnishings and other necessities have increased in cost until in March of this year the average was 70.4 per cent above the level for 1913, the cost of electricity to the consumer has remained practically stationary.

A report prepared by the United States Department of Labor showing that the average cost of electricity for domestic purposes has actually dropped since 1913, and this is in spite of the fact that everything entering into the production of electricity, such as labor, materials, taxes, freight and equipment have advanced along with the commodities that are included in a list which shows an average of more than 70 per cent.

In Kingston the rate for domestic electric service was reduced in 1915 more than 20 per cent, and has continued at that level ever since.

The Bureau of Labor compiled its statistics from the reports of 32 cities. It is shown that the high point in the cost of living was reached in June 1920, when the increase was 116.5 per cent above the 1913 level. The lowest point since that time was in September 1922 when it dropped to 66.3 per cent. Since that date the cost of living has been again increasing, until in March of this year it reached 70.4 per cent.

Since 1913 many uses for electricity has been developed and the volume of current used has been constantly increasing. Electricity is now used in many large industries, which by reason of the heavy consumption are able to buy current at quantity rates. One factor of this large use of electricity has been to make it possible to serve the householder without raising his rate. Electric companies have studied how to effect economies in operation, administration and construction, thus offsetting in a large measure the increased cost of labor and material necessary in the production of electric energy.

Policemen Dying, Shot by Bandits

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 25.—John J. Hyland, Brooklyn, policeman, was dying in a hospital here today from bullet wounds received while trying to arrest three hold-up men who escaped in a taxi-cab after robbing the chauffeur and throwing him out of his cab.

The chauffeur ran shouting for help and met Hyland.

The two started back to the scene of the hold-up when they saw the taxicab approaching. Hyland with drawn revolvers stepped in the street and ordered the driver to stop. A shot was the reply, the bullet piercing Hyland's abdomen. The cab swerved and passed on, but Hyland recovered sufficiently to fire five times, apparently without effect as the thugs kept going. The cab with one flat tire was recovered later but contained no clue to the robbers.

Sneak Thieves Are Busy Here

Some time during Thursday night a sneak thief removed a screen from a window on the first floor of the home of T. A. Bennett at 285 Washington avenue, crawled through the open window and stole some jewelry and money. The theft was discovered this morning.

Wednesday night a sneak thief worked the same game at the home of A. J. Conrad at 338 South Wall street, and helped himself to some jewelry.

Owing to the extremely warm weather householders are leaving the windows open nights and as a result sneak thieves find no trouble in obtaining an entry to the house.

SLAYERS GAVE "HUNCH" THAT LED CRIME HOME

Chicago Youths Gave Tip to Newspaper Reporters Which Resulted in Arousing Suspicion and Finally Laid Franks Murder at Their Doors—Defendants Uneasy at Testimony.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Criminal Court, Chicago, July 25.—A tale of cunning, daring and sheer nerve on the part of young "Dickie" Loeb that rivals anything ever conceived by the fictional brains of "Nick Carter" and "Old King Brady" was span into the record of the Leopold-Loeb murder trial today by three reporters for Chicago newspapers who worked on the story of Bobby Franks's kidnapping and murder.

One after another the reporters, Howard Mayer, Alvin Goldstein, and James Mulroy, mounted the witness stand in Justice Caverly's court and told how young Loeb, now on trial for the murder of the boy, became a volunteer assistant to them in their work, and how he was responsible for "turning up" some of the important information in the case.

Young Loeb even mingled with the crowd outside the Franks home that night when young Bobby's crushed and naked body had been recovered from the culvert into which it had been jammed by Loeb and Leopold, the reporters said, and the sheik-looking collegian expressed horror at the crime.

May Have Predicted Fate.

"Loeb asked me about the condition of the body, as I had seen it at the morgue," Goldstein said. "I told him and he said:

"'That's terrible, awful. Guys who would do that should be strung up'."

It is just that fate that the state of Illinois is now trying to impose upon the debonaire young college student.

Would Pick Franks's Kind.

A little earlier, James Mulroy, another of the reporters, had testified that he had asked Loeb "what kind of a boy this Franks boy was. Would he fight?' And Loeb, replied, said Mulroy, "that if he were going to kidnap or murder anybody young Bobby Franks was just the kind of a cocky little — — I would pick.' Those were his own words."

Slayers Did Not Smile.

Neither Loeb nor Leopold relished the testimony of the reporters.

Throughout the morning session they had smiled and laughed outright as witness after witness passed through the box and contributed their knowledge of the case to the "mountain of evidence" which the state is steadily constructing.

But at the testimony of the reporters their faces grew grave and sullen and young Loeb insisted to Clarence Darrow and Benjamin Bachrach, their counsel, that the witnesses be cross-examined. Loeb submitted some questions he wanted them asked. But the counsel on the advice of Jacob Loeb, uncle of Dickie and former president of the Chicago Board of Education, refused to cross-examine, and both boys lolled back in their seats in sullen silence.

Slayers Discussed Various Theories.

First Mayer, then Goldstein and Mulroy told the court they had known young Loeb for some time and that while working on the story they met him on the university campus.

Young Loeb, they said, manifested an extraordinary interest in their assignment, and discussed numerous theories with them as to how to solve what was then a mystery—the identity of the kidnappers had motive behind the brutal, sordid crime.

It was "Dickie" himself, Mayer said, "who broached the suggestion that Jacob Franks never would get his boy back by expecting to meet the kidnappers in some busy street, that most likely some word or instructions to the grief stricken father would be left at some drug or cigar store in the vicinity.

"'Why don't you canvass around the drug stores and find out,'" Mayer said Loeb asked him.

Credited "Hunch" to Fiction.

Mayer said he didn't think much of the idea, but Loeb insisted it was a good hunch and finally the reporters and Loeb himself got into a car and began a circuit of drug stores.

They finally wound up at a drug store in East 63rd street, to which Leopold had annonymously instructed Jacob Franks to repair, and there, by questioning the clerk, they found that somebody had been calling Franks by telephone there.

"'You see that's what comes from reading detective stories,'" Mayer quoted Loeb as saying, with a laugh when they congratulated him on the correctness of his "hunch."

Like Interested Spectators.

The youthful defendants were their own debonair selves when court opened at 10 o'clock this morning. Nattily dressed, clean shaven, with hair carefully parted and slicked back they came into court with their bailiffs and casually resumed their assumed role of interested spectators at their own trial. They both smiled and nodded to their attorneys, their friends and casual acquaintances.

There was a bare nod between young Leopold and the sad old man whose namesake and youngest heir the victim was.

Diver Rescued Machine From Lake.

The first witness called was Frank Blair, a professional diver, who told of going into the waters of Jackson Park Lagoon and recovering the portable typewriter on which Leopold wrote the letter to Jacob Franks, demanding $10,000 as a ransom for his son.

Leopold had mutilated the machine and chucked it into the lagoon to destroy the trail which the police and newspaper reporters were even then following. He later told the police where it was.

Telephoned After Boy Was Dead.

Percy Van De Bogert, a clerk in the drug store in East 63rd street, then testified concerning answering the telephone several times on May 22, and hearing a voice ask if "Jacob Franks is in the store?" It was to this store that Leopold had directed Franks to repair and await instructions as how to recover his son. The boy was then dead.

James C. Kemp, a negro porter at the store, gave his testimony. There were numerous telephone calls to the store to ascertain if Franks had followed instructions of the kidnappers and murderers of his boy. The father had not gone to the store because meanwhile he had learned his son was dead.

Covering His Tracks.

The consummate cunning with which Leopold sought to cover his tracks after the murder of the boy was related to the court by George Lewis, a student-instructor of ornithology and a frequent companion of Leopold's in the study of bird life.

Lewis testified that Leopold called on him on May 22, the day after the Franks murder, and asked him to take out a class in bird study, which he did, the class going to the vicinity of the culvert.

Again on the following Sunday, Lewis said, Leopold called him and said that he had been interrogated by the police concerning the Franks case.

Questioned Friend About Spectacles.

"He asked me" said Lewis, "whether I had lost my glasses. I felt in my pocket and said I had not, whereupon he said he understood a pair of spectacles had been picked up on or near where Franks's body was found, and he thought I probably would be questioned, too. He also asked me if I had two pair of glasses. I told him I had not. He said all of us who had been going to that vicinity to study birds might be questioned by the police."

None of these witnesses were subjected to any cross-examination whatsoever. Darrow simply waved them aside with "no cross-examination."

Captain Thomas C. Wolfe, a police officer, who first questioned young Leopold then took the stand. He told of getting on the boys' trail through learning that "a student of his name and description" had frequently been seen in the neighborhood doing what the residents called "birding."

Denied Movements to Police.

Crowe then read into the record Leopold's original signed statement to the police on May 25, in which he endeavored to explain his frequent trips to the locality where Franks' body was disposed of.

Leopold denied in this statement that he had been in the vicinity of the culvert since May 18.

Loeb Helped With Scoop.

Howard Mayer, a reported for the Chicago American, was then summoned and told a remarkable story of how Loeb had attempted to help him in unravelling the mystery.

Mayer said he met Loeb on the campus of the University of Chicago a few days after the murder and they talked of the Franks case.

"He suggested to me" said Mayer, "that I make a round of the drug stores around 63rd street and ascertain if there had not been some word left for Mr. Franks about the $10,000."

Subsequently, Mayer said, the suggestion was carried out, and Loeb accompanied several reporters on a round of the drug stores, finally coming into the one at 1465 East 63rd street, where, sure enough, the clerk said:

"Yes, somebody has been calling Mr. Franks here."

"Loeb turned to me," continued Mayer, "and said: 'See, I told you so. Now you have a scoop. That's what comes by my reading detective stories.'"

Both Loeb and Leopold laughed out loud at the reporter's description of this episode. They enjoyed it greatly.

Mayer was succeeded on the stand by Alvin Goldstein, a reported for the Chicago Daily News, who also had been on the trip around the

Are using these rare powders

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I did not intend to supply powders to women. My only idea was to furnish them my greatest beauty helps. But thousands of women have urged me, by letter and in person, to tell them the powders I use.

Edna Wallace Hopper

Like all my friends on the stage and in the movies, I use very costly powders. I have them made to my order, and they cost me $5 per box. Our careers depend on our looks, and nothing is too costly.

But I have persuaded the makers to offer these powders at ordinary prices. I order them in quantities, under my name. I offer them at my expense to girls and women who desire the best.

Now all druggists and toilet counters supply Edna Wallace Hopper's Powders. There are two kinds. For myself I prefer a clinging powder, a cold cream powder, based on my Youth Cream. It is enduring. That Youth Cream Powder costs $1. But many women prefer a light and fluffy powder. If you want that kind, it costs but 50 cents. Both kinds come in three shades—white, flesh and brunette.

So far as I know, these powders are the finest in existence. You may be sure that if anyone produced a better powder I would get it quickly. Anyone who uses common powders will gain a new conception of what powders should be.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

AMERICAN ADMIRALS.

The first officer of the United States navy to hold the rank of admiral was David G. Farragut, who was elevated to that position just 58 years ago today, July 25, 1866, as a reward for his great service in the civil war. Prior to the conflict between the states the highest rank in the United States naval service was that of commodore. In 1862 Congress conferred upon Farragut the rank of rear-admiral, in 1864 that of vice-admiral, and in 1866 he was made a full-fledged admiral. Farragut died in 1870, and the title of admiral was then conferred upon David D. Porter, who held that rank until his death in 1891. Congress then abolished the title of admiral, and the grade of rear-admiral remained the highest in Uncle Sam's naval service until 1899, when that of admiral was revived and conferred on George Dewey. In that year the old title of commodore was abolished and the holders were advanced to the grade of rear-admiral.

VIRGINIA DARE.

The first English child born in America was delivered by the stork to William and Eleanor Dare, nearly three hundred and thirty-seven years ago, to be exact, on August 18, 1587. The Dares had reached Roanoke less than a month previously with a party of settlers commanded by John White, the father of Eleanor Dare. The infant, a girl, was christened Virginia. The proud grandfather soon found it necessary to return to England for supplies, leaving behind eighty-nine men, seventeen women and two children, among them being his daughter, son-in-law and baby Virginia. On his way home White touched at Ireland left some potatoes which he took from Virginia.

His return was considerably delayed, and it was not until 1590, three years after leaving, that White again saw Roanoke.

He found the settlement a desolation and no trace of the Colony was ever found. The fate of Virginia Dare is a mystery, but it is not improbable that she was adopted by the Indians. It is believed that many of the colonists mingled with the natives, and for a long time thereafter families of the Hatteras tribe exhibited unmistakable indications of an admixture of European blood.

MACADAM, ROAD BUILDER.

The first Macadam road ever constructed was officially tested and approved in Scotland 114 years ago today.

The inventor of this system of road building was John Loudon Macadam, a native of Ayr, Scotland, where he was born in 1756. He went to New York in 1770, entered his uncle's counting house and became a successful merchant. In 1793 he returned to Scotland and purchased a handsome estate. 1810 he began his experiments in highway construction, which have made his name immortal. He investigated road building methods in a score of countries travelling 30,000 miles. His preliminary trials of "Macadamizing" were so sucessful that in 1816 he was appointed Surveyor to the Bristol Turnpike Trust, and remade the roads there cheaply and well. The House of Commons investigated this system and he was voted $50,000 and appointed Surveyor-General of Metropolitan Roads. He declined knighthood, and died in Scotland in 1836.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JULY 25, 1924.

Outrages such as the branding of "K. K. K." on the back of a clergyman in Berkeley, Mich., keep friends of the Ku Klux Klan rather busy explaining that not the organization but fanatical persons are responsible—which suggests the "distinction without a difference" that usually fails to carry conviction.

Government economy and efficiency under Coolidge management has more than kept pace with the tax cuts enacted by Congress with the approval of the administration. The surplus of $505,000,000 with which the fiscal year closed on June 30 is a measure in dollars of the zeal with which Federal executives have pursued the retrenchment program mapped out for them by President Coolidge.

The best indication of Republican confidence is the increasing number of counties which have presented the names of favorite sons for positions on the state ticket from Governor down to the last line on the ballot. Before the Democratic convention was held in New York city there was no dearth of candidates, but after that gathering finished its work there was an increase of aspirants for every state office to be filled by the voters this fall. Not only did the number of those desiring to head the ticket enlarge, but those anxious to occupy subordinate places doubled.

In connection with the attack by pirates on the French ship Mulhouse, a government agent at Washington, after admitting that piracy is rampant off the coast, is said to have added that "of course we can't do anything about it because the ships attacked are too far out." This is a surprising view. It is quite possible for "rum-runners" to be "too far out" to be rightfully seized, but the ships of any nation have the right to attack and capture known pirates anywhere on the high seas. Such has been the international agreement or accepted understanding for many years.

The antagonisms within the Democratic party that were centered at New York for a brief two weeks are now scattered over the country. Let nobody suppose that there has been any abandonment of the positions so bitterly contested by opposing factions at the New York meeting. Those factions have returned to their homes, there to nurse their grievances and register delight whenever any misfortune overtakes their New York opponents in the campaign. There may be some perfunctory demonstrations resembling team work, but the heart of the party was broken at New York and will not be healed for many a day.

There is much controversy between Great Britain and France over the powers to be exercised by the proposed American member of the reparations commission. The discussion is of slight interest to this Government, because there will never be an American member of the commission who will in any sense speak for the United States. It may be that an American will be invited to become a member of the commission, but he will act only in his individual capacity, just as Gen. Dawes and Mr. Young acted on the international committee that conceived the Dawes plan. There is no policy of our international relations more firmly fixed than that of non-entanglement in the problems of Europe. The United States can never accept the responsibility that would go with an official representative on the reparations commission. We will continue to look after our own affairs.

September 12 has been designated as mobilization day. On that day every individual and organization that forms a part of the national defense system constructed by the War Department will answer, "Present," and will be at the post of duty assigned to him, just as if a war emergency actually threatened. The day will have no more warlike significance than the citizens' military training camps that have won such universal approval. The most essential duty of a government is to be adequately prepared to furnish protection to its citizens from any sort of foreign assault. That is exactly what our present Republican government is doing, and it is exactly what the previous Democratic government failed to do. We do not have to recall the enormous waste of dollars and lives during the war period to demonstrate which is the better of those two policies.

That Body of Yours

ACUTE AND CHRONIC.

You have been to your physician with a troublesome cough, and after examining you he states that it is just an "acute" condition and that you'll soon be all right.

Or perhaps you have suspected that your kidneys were not acting properly and you have brought him a sample of your urine.

After examining same he asks you to bring in another sample in a few days, and then another a week or two after that.

You ask him the reason for requiring the second and third sample.

He replies: "Well, to tell you the truth I found some albumen (or perhaps sugar) in your urine the first time and I wanted to check it up. I find this second and also the third to be perfectly normal, so that must have been just an 'acute' condition the first time."

Now, you would like to know what "acute" means.

You think of an acute pain as a sharp, sudden or very active pain, but it is a little harder to understand it as applied to a cough, or to the kidneys.

Now, when an ailment or an infection attacks you, your entire defensive forces arise to meet it.

Your blood cells increase in amount and attack the invader. Your heart beats stronger, you breathe faster, and a real struggle ensues. You are well again in a short time, due to your defensive forces winning a complete victory.

This is an acute condition, your doctor recognizes it as such, and watches the progress of the battle.

But if the invader is powerful, or your defensive forces are weak, you do not get over the attack completely. There is just a little "hanging on" by the cough, or the albumen or sugar in your urine.

Then in a few weeks or months you get another attack from which you even more slowly recover, with just the same little "hanging on" process ensuing.

Perhaps again you have another attack.

When you reach a condition of this kind your doctor will tell you that your condition is "chronic."

Now, what is my point?

Well, when you get an "acute" attack of anything, remember that it is up to you to help your defensive forces in every way.

Follow your doctor's orders to the smallest detail in the matter of rest, food and even medicine should he give it to you.

Don't let an "acute" condition become "chronic."

He Couldn't Wait

One evening when calling on my sweetie her little sister ran into the room and jumped on my lap. She sat real still for a few minutes, then suddenly she threw both chubby arms around my neck. "I jus' love you, Dan," she whispered in my ear. "I wish you'd please wait till I grow up so's I could marry you!" But I did—I married "big sister" instead.—Chicago Journal.

No More Gas Pumps for Wall St.

Public Works Board Refuse Request to Install One—Chamber of Commerce Call 713 Broadway an Eyesore—Summer Street Sewer Problem—Other Matters.

A request made by Joe Sobsey and Abe Goldfarb to install a free air service and a gas tank and pump in front of No. 292 Wall street was unanimously denied by the board of public works in regular monthly session Thursday evening at the city hall. The board took the position that auto traffic is too heavy to allow the installation of any more gas pumps in Wall street.

Owing to the illness of Mayor Morris Block the meeting was presided over by Commissioner George F. Chandler with Commissioners John Hiltebrant and Selig Oppenheimer present. The board transacted considerable business.

$50,000 Garage for Broadway.

The Chamber of Commerce sent in a communication calling attention to the old frame building at 713 Broadway which it said was an "eyesore," and asking that the board take some steps toward compelling the owner, who the Chamber of Commerce understood was a Mr. Lerenthal, a furrier on Wall street, to do something to improve the looks of the property.

Commissioner Oppenheimer said the property had been recently purchased by Homer Kuhlmann, who would tear the building down and was about to erect a $50,000 garage on the property. Plans and specifications for the new garage were already in the hands of bidders. The secretary of the board was instructed to notify the Chamber of Commerce to that effect.

Summer Street Sewer Problem.

A petition from the residents of Summer street asking that a sanitary sewer be constructed in that street was read. The board had previously investigated conditions in that street and it was stated that it was impossible to construct a sanitary sewer and that the health laws forbid hooking the houses up with the storm water sewer.

After considerable discussion it was brought out that the only probable solution of the problem was the installation of a septic tank which would cost in the neighborhood of $1,500. The entire matter was referred to Superintendent Darrow with instructions to take it up with the residents who had signed the petition and inform them of what would have to be done to comply with their request and also as to the probable cost and see if they still desired some action taken. Superintendent Darrow was instructed to report back to the board at the next meeting.

Want Street Signs.

Requests from the Woman's Exchange to install a sign at 306 Clinton avenue; J. P. Lyons to install a sign at 56 John street; L. Ginzburg to install a sign at 46 Broadway; Joe Sobsey and Abe Goldfarb to install a sign at 292 Wall street, were all referred to Superintendent Darrow with power.

Wilbur Avenue Gas Pump.

L. J. Hamma sent in a request to install a gas pump at 24-26 Wilbur avenue, which was referred to Superintendent Darrow to investigate and report back to the board.

Other Requests.

Charles C. Schick of No. 34 Davis street sent in a communication calling attention to the falling of a ceiling in his home which he claimed was due to the "heavy blasting" at the city quarry. It was referred to Superintendent Darrow.

Alfred Tigar of 251 Abeel street wrote calling attention to the flooding of his property by water and asked that some action be taken to alter drainage at Hudson and Spruce streets so that the water did not run over his ground. It was referred to Superintendent Darrow.

Merritt Avenue Petition.

Residents on Merritt avenue petitioned the board to establish a temporary grade in that street so that the water board would extend water service.

It was brought out that the water board would not lay water mains in streets that were not graded. The public works board believed it was a waste of money to grade a street and then for the water board to come along and tear up the street again for water pipe. After some discussion Superintendent Darrow was instructed to establish a grade on the street and notify the water board that as soon as the water pipes were laid the board would see that the street was properly graded.

Cradle High Tension Wires.

The report of the common council committee regarding the dangerous condition of the high tension wires on Marys avenue was read and the board decided to ask the electric company to install cradles under the wires where they crossed the highway. It was brought out that the fire board is to have an investigation to determine whether the high tension wires were properly installed.

Cost of Sewers.

Supenntendent Darrow reported that the cost of the Wiltwyck avenue sewer was $782.81, and the First avenue sewer $8,048.28. The report was filed.

Deeds to Streets.

The Roosevelt Park Realty Company filed with the board deeds to Jefferson avenue, Jefferson Place and Roosevelt avenue in Roosevelt Park, which the company had opened for real estate development. The deeds were laid on the table until the next meeting.

To Pipe Open Sewer.

Commissioner Oppenheimer called attention to the unsanitary condition of the open sewer on the Forst property on Abeel street which runs over rocks and into the culvert on the strand. It was brought out that it would need but 150 feet of pipe and the board directed that the sewer be piped.

Broadway Pavement.

Commissioner Oppenheimer also called attention to the brick pavement at the Broadway railroad crossing. The matter of the cost of laying new brick there was referred to Superintendent Darrow to ascertain what the job would cost and to report back at the next meeting. Superintendent Darrow stated that he thought to purchase new brick and lay them at that point would cost about $3,000. He will ascertain the actual cost, however, and report back.

Others matters taken up will be found elsewhere.

Loved History For Its Own Sake

DeWitt Roosa, Who Died Recently, Was Interested in Historic Things Because Long Line of Ancestors Had Helped Make American History.

In the recent death of DeWitt Roosa, Kingston lost a man deeply interested in the history of this city and county. Nor was Mr. Roosa's interest in matters historic simply a fad; it was in a sense an inheritance. When he became a member of "The Sons of Colonial Wars," he had to his credit 28 ancestors, who had fought in Colonial wars, a most unusual background.

Mr. Roosa's mother was Lamira Elizabeth DeWitt, (not Laura as stated in Mr. Roosa's obituary) before her marriage to Hiram Roosa, and her father was Judge Jacob Rutzen DeWitt of Onondaga county, one of New York state's earliest senators. Judge DeWitt's sister, Mary DeWitt, became the mother of Governor DeWitt Clinton. Mr. Roosa's mother was also a descendant of Tjerck Classen DeWitt, who came to this country before 1650 and married Barbara Andrieson in New Amsterdam, April 24, 1656.

Mr. Roosa's father, Hiram Roosa, was born of French Huguenot parents who fled from France to Spain at the time of the massacre of St. Bartholomew, and went from Spain to Holland, from which country they sailed for New Amsterdam.

Mr. Roosa made many valued gifts to Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, during and since the regency of Mrs. Roosa, and had much more than the ordinary reason for being interested in preserving documents and articles belonging to the pioneer people of Ulster county.

The only surviving members of this historic family to which Mr. Roosa belonged are his sister, Mrs. Adele Roosa Warner of Jamestown, N. Y., and her son, Jacob Rutzen DeWitt Warner of Warren, Ohio.

Wireless Operator Hero of Ship Disaster.

E. M. WALTERS.

E. M. Walters, of Everett, Mass., radio operator of the S. S. Boston, stands out as the hero of the disaster in which lives were lost when the vessel was rammed by the S. S. Swift Arrow off Point Judith, R. I. He brought aid by wireless, and, with the captain alone, remained on the sinking ship until it was beached at Newport. But he won't admit he is a hero.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

RED TOP

Red Top the rooster was very proud of himself. He strutted around the barnyard boasting.

Red Top the Rooster Was So Proud.

"Yes, I got him up. No one else could get him up. He would say the night before that he wanted to get up early the next morning and then when morning came he would say:

"'Well, I don't believe I have to get up quite so early. I can sleep for a little bit longer.'

"And they would let him sleep.

"Oh, he was a hard one to get up in the morning. I could tell from all the things I heard in the barnyard. They would tease him about it.

"They would laugh and say:

"'You didn't see the sunrise this morning, did you? We thought you wanted to see it rise!'

"Then he would say:

"'I really did want to see it rise and you should have made me get up.'

"Then they would say:

"'But we tried ever so hard and you wouldn't get up. You said you didn't think you wanted to get up as much as you thought you had.'

"'That is so,' he would answer. 'It's my fault. It was what I said.

"'But I really do want to see the sunrise, so please make me get up early tomorrow morning.'

"And the same thing would happen the next day.

"Then there were times when he had lots of things he wanted to do but he always changed his opinion when each morning came.

"Now I had been hearing all of this for a month or more and I thought to my rooster self:

"'If he is going to enjoy the farm this summer he must get up and see what we do early in the morning.

"'He must hear the concert the birds give, which is silly compared to the concert I give, but still it is something he should say he had heard.

"'And he should really see the sunrise. In fact he should get up ahead of time in case there happened to be a crowd.

"'Then he would surely find a nice place from which to see it if he got up ahead of time. If there happened to be a crowd he would be able to get a good seat.

"These are the thoughts I had."

"Have you ever seen a crowd at a sunrise?" asked Mrs. Hen.

"I never have," admitted Red Top, the rooster, "but then there is no telling when a crowd might gather to see so wonderful a sight.

"Yes, there is no telling. For some morning lots and lots of people might decide that they would like to see the sunrise and then there'd be a crowd.

"Surely there should be a crowd around to view so magnificent a sight but there never seems to be one, as you have said.

"No matter how beautiful a sunrise may be there is never a crowd pushing each other and saying:

"'Let me see! Don't stand in my way.'

"No, nothing like that ever happens.

"Still it may happen some time. You can't tell. At least I can't.

"But any way, I made him get up this morning.

"I stood under his window and I shouted at him:

"'Cock-a-doodle-do, cock-a-doodle-do, cock-a-doodle-do, cock-a-doodle-do.'

"I said this and I shouted this over and over again, and he actually got up!

"He was grumbling to himself:

"'That wretched rooster wouldn't let me sleep.' But once he was up he was delighted and he said, 'I am so glad that rooster did make me get up so I could see the early morning and all that happens early in the morning on a farm, and so I could really see a sunrise too.

"'I was mad at that rooster at first, but I'm grateful to him now.' And that was what I did," Red Top ended.

He Actually Got Up.

It Looked That Way

Little Robert while out walking with his nurse saw a blacksmith shoeing a horse and upon returning home said, "Mamma, I saw the man who makes horses today."

"Are you sure you did?" asked his mother.

"Of course I am," replied Robert. "He had one nearly finished when I saw him. He was just nailing on its behind feet."

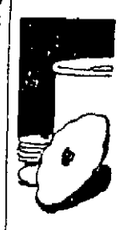
FILL THE COOKY JAR

No child will ever forget the delight of grandmother's cooky jar, and even the older ones enjoy a crisp, tasty cooky with a cup of tea. In most families the cherished recipes are handed down from mother to daughter. Here are a few that are good and worth saving:



White Cookies.—Take two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of shortening, mix and cream well, then add two well-beaten eggs and a cupful of milk; a greated lemon rind or a nutmeg for flavoring may be used. Sift four teaspoonfuls of baking powder with two cupfuls of flour, add alternately with the milk and when well blended set on ice for an hour or two to become stiff. Roll out, adding as little flour as possible; sprinkle with sugar as the cookies go into the oven.

Hermits.—To one cupful of thick, sour cream add two cupfuls of brown sugar, one cupful of chopped raisins, two-thirds of a cupful of butter, two well-beaten eggs, one teaspoonful each of soda, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg, and stir with flour to make a stiff dough. Drop by teaspoonfuls on a baking sheet, add a nut or raisin on top of each and bake in a moderate oven.

Soft Molasses Cookies.—Take one-half cupful of shortening, two cupfuls of molasses, and put over the heat. When the boiling point is reached add one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and ginger, stir well and remove from the heat. Add one beaten egg, one cupful of sour milk and one teaspoonful of soda. Beat well and add about four cupfuls of flour and drop from a spoon on a baking sheet.

One may add different spices, nuts and fruit to the above recipe, making a different tasting cooky.

Aunt O'a Cookies.—Take one cupful each of butter and sugar, two eggs well beaten, one-half cupful of milk, nutmeg to taste and three teaspoonfuls of baking powder added to flour to roll. Roll, cut and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a hot oven.

Avoid the Flatterer

It is better to fall among crows than flatterers; for those devour the dead only; these the living.—Antisthenes.

WORK OF INDIAN IS PASSING OUT

Red Men Face Problem of Existence as Whim for Their Stuff Goes.

Cass Lake, Minn.—Dame Fashion, who, ever since the Indians relinquished their land, has smiled upon the red men, making their characteristic creations popular with the white brethren, now is frowning upon the offerings of the dexterous tribesmen.

Dr. W. B. Heagerty, superintendent of the Ojibway sales agency, says that the Indians' contributions to curio collections, such as beaded things, blankets, lace handkerchiefs and miniature birch-bark canoes, must be revolutionized to further capitalize the modern white man's passion for novelties.

The superintendent blames fashion alone for the complicated situation which the agency, promoted by the Episcopal diocese of Duluth, now is attempting to solve by teaching its Indian proteges that, to continue in the bloodless fight against the high cost of living, they must cater to the fantastic whims bestowed by custom upon their white neighbors.

Sales Are Almost Nothing.

In years past, according to Doctor Heagerty, the Indian, or rather his squaw, found a ready market for the wastepaper baskets, work baskets, miniature canoes and other trinkets which they made with their own hands. But now fashion decrees that it is no longer correct to have these curios in sight around the house, so sales have fallen to virtually nothing.

Ojibway women also make exquisite point-lace handkerchiefs which formerly brought fancy prices, but custom holds that they are no longer in style, so these one-time popular ornaments go a-begging, says the superintendent.

"Another conflicting angle," Doctor Heagerty continues, "concerns the beadwork on bags, moccasins and chains done by Ojibway women. The cost of glass now is so high and the quality so inferior that beadwork cannot be done at a profit.

"And, the worst of all, the Indian, deprived of his tribal customs by the advance of civilization, cannot understand all of this. It is especially difficult for them to turn their talents to other channels."

The problem was revealed to mission workers during the first year's operation of the Ojibway sales agency. This agency was established to help the rapidly diminishing tribesmen to bridge the gulf between themselves and the white man's civilization by effecting "an economic and moral reformation."

The church would abolish the old trading posts, whereby the Indian received in exchange for his offerings merely food, tobacco and the necessities of life, and would obtain cash for their products.

Would Teach Value of Money.

This, it is hoped, will enable them to learn the true value of money, so that 10 years later when they, according to law, are no longer government charges, they will be able to provide for themselves.

During the period of transition special attention is being directed to the large field for harvesting wild rice and making maple sugar, for which there always is a ready market.

"But this work has been hampered by cruel obstacles, for last year the maple sap was scarce—in fact there was not enough for the Ojibway family—but the wild rice crop was ample and a record harvest was effected," Doctor Heagerty declares.

A fine of $50 was imposed which was paid, and a jail sentence of 30 days suspended. Mitchell refused to make a complaint against the woman.

Doubtful Compliment

"The right kind of man appreciates a compliment from his wife." "Well," said Mr. Bibbles, thoughtfully, "that depends on the circumstances. Somehow I don't feel a rosy glow of satisfaction stealing over me after I have related a carefully connected story to explain my absence from the domestic hearth, and the wife tells me with a cynical smile that I'm 'truly gifted.'"

STRAY BULLET HITS SAUGERTIES RESIDENT

Rouben Slade of the South Side, Saugerties, while driving his automobile past the residence of Nelson Burhans at upper Malden Wednesday evening was shot in the leg, a stray bullet imbedding itself in the flesh. Mr. Slade after feeling the sting began to look for the cause and found a .22 calibre bullet underneath the flesh, which he was able to extract.

A couple of boys had been noticed with rifles near the Burhans property and a few minutes before a bullet narrowly hit Mr. Burhans's mother. It is believed that the same boys were responsible for Slade being hit.

Does Labor Favor Prohibition Repeal?

Grand Chief of Railroad Engineers Answers "No"; Gives Reasons Why Labor Benefited

Samuel Gompers with characteristic Hebrew shrewdness has attempted to impress the nation that labor favors wine and beer. He has not been officially delegated to speak for labor, but has spoken his individual sentiments, letting his official title as head of the American Federation of Labor convey the impression that labor has thus authorized him to speak.

No one is more competent to speak for a great branch of laboring men than Mr. Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Mr. Stone's point of view is diametrically opposed to Mr. Gompers's statements.

In an article in the Scientific Temperance Journal Mr. Stone says: "When you realize that on these limited trains the engineers must pick up and correctly interpret on an average three signals per minute, each of which spells the difference between safety and disaster, you can understand why every sense must be alert. We who have spent most of our lives in the cab of a locomotive know the infinitesimal fraction of a second that oftentimes means safety. That alcohol does slow down the brain action is conceded by all. So ten years before the churches began preaching prohibition, years before even the railroad officials began issuing orders about drinking, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers was fighting the drink evil . .

. If the fact is brought home to the American people that it is the intention of our state and national officers to rigidly enforce the prohibition law, I am certain it will create a more respectful attitude toward the general laws of the country. . . . . .

We are not going back to the old conditions of things, with their misery, want and poverty—never again. PROHIBITION HAS COME TO STAY.

CRIPPLE SLAIN WHILE BOYS ARE PLAYING BANDIT

Comrade Removed Clip From Pistol, but Forgot Cartridge in Chamber.

New York.—For 10 years of his life, Frank Redhill, messenger in the American Trust company, No. 135 Broadway, a cripple, was the butt of games he played with friends.

He and Frank Gill, No. 146 Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, were playing with an automatic pistol they had found in the coat of one of the trust company's watchmen. As it usually happened, Redhill had to play he was the bandit, because Gill wanted to be the brave officer with the weapon.

Redhill had removed the cartridge clip from the gun. Gill forgot the cartridge in the firing chamber. He pulled the trigger, and Redhill, whimpering and white-faced, staggered from the cloakroom where they had found the weapon into the main banking room. He fell, shot through the chest, before the cages of the tellers, who were opening up for the day's business.

Boy Collapses.

Gill, with the pistol still in his hand, followed him, crying: "I shot Frank.

He Pulled the Trigger.

I shot Frank." He collapsed on a bench.

The rumor of a battle brought a Broadway crowd before the offices of the trust company. Police arrived from the Old Slip station and an ambulance from Broad Street hospital. Rev. Father Flynn from St. Peter's Catholic church, Barclay and Church streets, knelt on the floor of the banking room and administered the last rites to the unconscious boy just before he died.

Gill, shaken and hysterical, was arrested on a technical charge of homicide and questioned at the district attorney's office.

Redhill, lame as a result of infantile paralysis, had worked for the trust company 15 months. Gill was a newcomer.

Redhill is survived by his mother and a younger brother. Officials said she would receive her son's share of the insurance carried for employees by the trust company.

Radio—The New Champion for a Universal Language

By GENERAL J. G. HARBORD
President, Radio Corporation of America.

Broadcasting is still in its radiant youth, but its effects on American life may already be seen in several directions. There is a well-marked trend toward a universal language, a considerable broadening of the horizon at home, and this year promises innovations that may almost revolutionize our old political methods.

In the last few years but little interest has been shown in a Universal Language. The subject has merited more attention than it has received, for its potential influence on international culture and commerce and above all on international peace might easily change the course of human history. There now appears, however, a new champion for a Universal Language, a huge powerful giant whose influence envelops the earth and pervades the surrounding ether-Radio.

The United States, because of its geographical situation, has not yet felt the need for a common medium of international broadcasting, though in all forms of telegraphic communication a universal language would be exceedingly useful. Such broadcasting as may be carried on by our restless neighbor to the south has no place in our radio picture. Canadian broadcasting offers no stimulus to a study of the subject because that country speaks our own tongue. What little transoceanic broadcast reception has been carried on has been almost entirely with our kinsmen, the English, from whom we derive our language.

Some day international broadcast communication will be an every-day occurrence with Europe, South America and the Asiatic shores of the Pacific. It will not be for entertainment only, but for the more important considerations of our commercial and political life. Will Radio, peculiarly the instantaneous method of communication, wait while messages are being translated in the same way that dots and dashes are now deciphered into language and then interpreted into native tongue? When hundreds of millions of people are absorbed in the daily intercourse of nations a universal language cannot be far distant, for the far-reaching political problems of the future cannot wait on translation nor risk its blunders.

Esperanto and Ido have already received an impetus through the air. Associations for their promotion exist. But it is doubtful if any synthetic language can ever overtake in the race for universality our own English. It will probably never displace existing languages, but with radio as a carrier it promises to become a common means of international expression. It will supplement the several other native tongues of the world.

America, an English speaking land, leads the world today in broadcasting. Several of its nearly six hundred broadcasting stations reach out to Europe and South America and at no distant day will cross the Pacific. The British Isles, Australia, New Zealand and the remainder of the British dominions, speaking the same tongue, stand next to us in broadcast development. The stations of these widely flung states are heard by adjacent nations, who will be listening constantly to English programs. It is inevitable that such listeners will seek to understand the more frequently recurring expressions of the broadcaster. Curiosity and a desire for knowledge, spurred by the fascination which Radio exerts over all of us, its disciples, will bring the wish to learn the language most frequently heard over the ether.

The commerce of English speaking nations touches in a hundred ways every worth while country in the world. English is the best language today for foreign nations who need to borrow money. Improved communications break down language barriers. The differences in speech that still linger—for example, between New England and Virginia—are evidences of a day when they were a month apart. Today in China, Japan, India and the Near East and in the major countries of Europe, English instruction is being eagerly sought. The World War spread English. Two millions of Americans and other millions from the British Isles and the imperial dominions for several years taught English and English customs in French, German, Belgian and Italian territory. There is hardly an individual in those countries who cannot boast of at least a few words of English. With the added force of radio broadcasting crossing the seas, with programs and announcers in English, our language will reach understanding ears whether they belong to Germans, French, Italians, Dutch, Spanish or the ancient races of Asia. Some day the Siamese coolie and the Malay rajah may enjoy entertainment broadcasted from our Pacific coast; the student in Constantinople may receive instruction by radio from Columbia University; the Burmese maiden "looking eastward to the sea" may listen to a station on the old Moulmein Pagoda broadcasting "On the Road to Mandalay" in the tongue of the Bard of Avon

Patient Old Bird

The green heron, which is sometimes called the fly-up-the-creek, is about one and one-half feet long and is common throughout the United States and Canada. It feeds mostly on fish, frogs and other aquatic animals and may be seen, particularly in the morning and in the evening, standing patiently motionless in some shallow water, waiting till prey comes within reach.

Matter of Business

Mr. Flubdub was a trifle close. However, he fell in love with a lady and persuaded her to marry him. She was said to be a very capable manager. The honeymoon being some time over, she approached her husband one day with extended hand. He seized it and attempted to kiss it. "Now, John, don't try to dodge the issue," said the lady firmly. "I want $10."

MANION MAY WIN WESTERN GOLFING CROWN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Hinsdale Country Club, Hinsdale, Ill., July 25.—Jimmy Manion, the methodical golfer from St. Louis, loomed today as the probable successor to the western amateur golfing crown when the four semi-finalists in the Western Golf Association tournament started play today, under ideal weather conditions.

Manion came into the spotlight as a favorite following his overwhelming defeat of Chick Evans, defending champion and eight times winner in other western tournaments, in the third round play yesterday. The score was 8 and 7, making it the most disastrous defeat suffered by Evans since he came into prominence as a golfer.

Today Manion will play Albert Seckel, of Riverside, who yesterday eliminated William Medart of St. Louis, 2 and 1. The other semi-finalists are Harrison R. Johnston of St. Paul, who yesterday defeated Eddie Held of St. Louis, 3 and 1, and Burton Mudge of Exmoor, who yesterday crawled back to victory over E. F. Carter after being 7 down at one time during the play.

Homer as Historian

For the mere hard purposes of history, the Iliad and the Odyssey are the most effective books which ever were written. We see the hall of Menelaus, we see the garden of Alcinous, we see Nausicaa among her maidens on the shore, we see the yellow monarch sitting with ivory scepter in the marketplace dealing out genial justice. . . . Could we enter the palace of an old Ionian lord we know what we should see there; we know the words in which he would address us. We could meet Hector as a friend. If we could choose a companion to spend an evening with over a fireside, it would be the man of many counsels, the husband of Penelope.—Froude.

Too Much for Him

An officer in one of the Seventh street banks says he answers questions all day long and is always glad to be of service to clients.

"But I wish you would tell me," he said, "what I should have told the woman who came up to my desk this morning. I was rushing to get a statement finished that was already overdue, but I left off and asked her what I could do for her. And in an anxious voice she replied:

"'Please, have you seen in here this morning an elderly lady with heart trouble?'"

Forbade Monks Chocolate

The immoderate use of chocolate in the Seventeenth century was considered so violent an inflamer of the passions that Joan Fran Rauch enforced the necessity of forbidding the monks to drink it.

GOSHEN TAXPAYERS REFUSE TO BUY ST. ELMO PROPERTY

At a special election held on Tuesday afternoon Goshen taxpayers defeated the proposition to acquire a portion of the St. Elmo Site for a plaza, through raising $6,000 by a tax levy in 1925 and $3,000 in the levy of 1926.

It is expected that Henry Hull, the owner of the property, who commenced the erection of four stores on the property some weeks ago, but abandoned the work pending decision in a regard to the acquisition by the village, will now resume the construction.

MORBID CURIOSITY RESULTS IN DEATH

Man Wanted to Experience Sensation of Hanging.

Budapest.—Because the owner of Somogy castle was seized by a morbid desire to experience the sensations of a man being hanged, he lost his life and his aged servant became his murderer.

One day Bela Marffy, a Hungarian junker, was found dead in his study, with a rope around his neck and two heavy weights tied to the end of the rope. The coroner's verdict was suicide, but the family, which knew Marffy to be intensely fond of life, declined to accept it.

Their suspicions rested upon the servant, who finally confessed he was in fact the murderer, though no thought had been further removed from his mind a few minutes before the act was committed.

Marffy, it developed, had read an account the day before of a boy who hanged himself. Curious to know how a man feels just before he is about to expire, he arranged that his servant was to stand near him while he tied a noose, at the end of which were two weights, about his neck. The servant was to lift up the weights, thereby relieving the pressure, at the moment it seemed to him that his master was about to expire unless relieved.

The servant declared that while he was awaiting this moment his eyes fell upon his master's purse on the table, filled with bills of high denomination. Instead of relieving Marffy the servant allowed him to die and then possessed himself of the money.

Three Children Wander in Park for Three Days

New York.—Charles Ahne, ten; his brother, Oscar, eleven, and his sister, Elizabeth, eight, are home again with their parents at 186 Lincoln avenue, the Bronx, after a three-day exploration of St. Mary's park. The park extends from One Hundred and Forty-second to One Hundred and Forty-ninth street, between St. Ann's and Convent avenues.

Instead of going to school, they set out in search of adventure. When they did not return their stepmother notified the police.

According to Charles they played with other boys and girls until dark. Some of their playmates had given them candy and crackers and when "supper time" arrived they decided to prolong their holiday.

They made a bed in an old shack. While the police were searching for them the youngsters romped along the park paths. Mothers of other children gave them crackers, candy and milk, they said, and that night they went back to the shack.

The third day, Charlie said, they saw their father looking for them and they hid behind some bushes. That night the storm drove them to seek shelter on a porch.

They arose wet and tired and dirty and decided that they had obtained all the adventure they wanted. They started for home. As they left the park a woman saw them and notified a policeman, who took them to the station, where their father claimed them.

Ring Torn Off Cyclone Victim in 1880 Found

Jacksonville, Ill.—A wedding ring which 44 years ago was snatched from the finger of its owner by some mysterious force of nature during a cyclone, was found recently in a field on the farm of C. E. Davis, eight miles southeast of this city. The ring belonged to Mrs. Jerry Cox, who was killed during a cyclone which visited that vicinity on May 9, 1880.

Mrs. Cox was killed near the site of the present home of the Davis family. When her body was found two rings which she always wore were found to be missing. One of these was the wedding ring found by Mr. Davis while cultivating corn in a field a half mile from the scene of the tragedy.

Gets Fine, but No Fish

Springfield, Vt.—Harold Comstock paid $60.20 for fishing in the village reservoir here recently when he appeared in court for violating the health laws. A novel feature of the case was that Comstock paid for the privilege of fishing and not for catching fish, for when arrested no fish were found in his possession.

Airedale Put to Sleep, Wakes With New Nose

Vancouver, B. C.—Bob, a particularly well-bred Airedale dog, owned by Tom Brown of Golden, B. C., has learned that beauty is more than skin deep.

Bob was in an encounter with a bulldog recently and lost the end of his aristocratic nose.

His owner feared that the unauthorized amputation would impair the value of his canine friend, so obtaining an ordinary Airedale without pedigree, he proceeded to the dog hospital.

The mongrel was given sufficient anesthetic to put him into the canine heaven and Bob woke up with a new nose.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 25.—The best buying in the stock market today was in the railroad shares and quiet but steady progress was made by leading rails to higher price levels. As a rule the realizing sales which came into the market today were directed elsewhere than to the railroad stocks and even the low priced issues which have been moving forward briskly in the last few sessions were able to make slight improvements.

Excellent records were made by the old-line dividend rails, including Lehigh Valley, up 3 points to 52½ and Reading up 1½ to 62¾, the highest prices for these stocks since segregation of coal properties; Lackawanna at 131 up 3; Delaware and Hudson up 3 to 121½; Pittsburgh and West Virginia up 2½ @ 54⅞, and Chesapeake and Ohio in new high ground at 87¾. These stocks continued to be the backbone of the market today and no signs of retreat were exhibited by any stock in this group.

Buying of leading oil stocks continued in good form today backed by the feeling that with crude oil price slashing out of the way, with the leaders of the industry determined to curtail drilling and consumption on the increase, the oil stocks should soon begin to feel the improvement which the remaining months of the year will bring to the industry.

Higher prices for raw and refined sugars were reported today in New York and Cuba and sugar stocks formed an important part of the transactions of the day. Industrial leaders were unusually inactive and prices moved in a narrow radius. Bethlehem Steel gave a good account of itself in view of the passing of its dividend for the first time in eight years. United States Steel and Churible were also inactive at fractionally lower prices.

Shenandoah Goes Aloft for Safety

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Lakehurst, N. J., July 25.—After twice being brought to the ground on its return to the air station here after a successful 500 mile test flight the navy's big dirigible Shenandoah again took the air shortly before noon in an effort to fly around a storm approaching Lakehurst.

The first time the air ship was brought down a 14 mile cross hangar wind made it dangerous to attempt to put the craft in its hangar. The commander went aloft and hovered over the field until daybreak when the vessel again was brought to the ground. A strong cross hangar wind was still blowing, however, and the ground crew, augmented by several hundred civilians and air station attaches, held the ship fast for several hours in hopes of it dying down when an attempt will be made to house the vessel.

Decision to take the air a second time was influenced by weather conditions, according to Commander Lansdoone, who explained the Shenandoah would be placed at her mooring mast, were it not for predicted thunder storms. He explained the mooring mast "grounds" the ship and makes it more susceptible to being struck by lightning.

Absurd!

"He said he had to live, and a lot of other nonsense."—Witness in English police court.

Check Epidemic Of Smallpox

One Hundred Cities Had 1,705 Cases Six Weeks Ago—Checked By Government And Local Authorities.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, July 25.—The smallpox epidemic, which at one time threatened to become a calamity, has been checked through the co-operation of the United States Public Health Service with local authorities, it was announced today.

Although five scattered cities reported 43 deaths in the last six weeks, government officials declared their remedial activities had halted further spread of the disease. Reports showed not only sharp declines in the number of cases but in the death rate as well.

At the height of the epidemic several weeks ago cases were reported in 100 cities. The number, totalling 1,705 six weeks ago—four times the number reported at the same period in 1923—has been reduced to only 371 as of July 20. The decline was steady, falling from 895 to 525 to 371 in the last four weeks.

Mr. Wrinn was a marine fireman, employed by the Cornell Steamboat Company and until a few months ago held the position of fireman on the ferryboat Transport. While of a quiet and unassuming disposition he had a wide circle of friends who admired him for his manly traints of character. Besides his widowed mother, he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. George McCullough, Florence and Rita, and two brothers, Patrick A. and Andrew F., all of this city. Funeral Monday from his late home, 218 Catherine street, at 9 o'clock and at 9:30 at St. Mary's Church with a high Mass of requiem for the repose of his soul. She was a daughter of Andrew Schoonmaker, a leading paper manufacturer of Napanoch in his day, and was married to Mr. Young on January 6, 1875. Big Balloon May Be Lost at Sea

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Scituate, Mass., July 25.—The naval observation balloon which broke away from its moorings at Lakehurst early today is probably lost. The big ship sailed out to sea here today on a shift of wind. Thousands of spectators witnessed the undirected flight of the ship over providence, Hanover, Brockton and other towns. The balloon was over half a mile in the air when last sighted.

Providence, R. I., July 25.—The big observation balloon which broke away at the Lakehurst, N. J., air port passed over this city shortly before 9 o'clock today. The covering was badly torn and a number of ropes trailed from the runaway "ship." Thousands of spectators watched the balloon come up Narragansett Bay and sail over the city.

Lakehurst, N. J., July 25.—The large naval observation balloon, stationed at the air station here, snapped its cables in a high wind early today, shot up into the fog and disappeared.

It was the second time within a month that the balloon had broken away.

Camp Flogging At Spartanburg

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Spartanburg, S. C., July 25.—Machinery was set in motion today for a far-reaching probe of an alleged prison camp flogging, expected to rival in scope the Florida investigations of a year ago, when a grand jury here prepared to call two prison camp captains named in charges made by S. R. Wilson, a former camp guard.

The captains are V. C. Calvert, in charge of the prison gang near Boiling Springs, and P. P. Casey, of the converse gang.

Three youths were named in Wilson's charges as having been unmercifully beaten during the time he was a camp guard. The boys were Bennie Nicholson William Worrell and Simon Williams.

The chain gang officers are said to have admitted administering a few blows to the men named with a strap but denied they participated in any strenuous floggings.

Seaplane Flyers Fall in Lower Bay

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 25.—Two flyers escaped injury when a seaplane of the New York city police department fell into the waters of the lower bay of Fort Hamilton today. The flyers were Lieut. Walter Bryan of the Fort Hamilton naval air station and Chief Petty Officer Henry Nutting.

The plane was up 300 feet when its engine went dead. Lieut. Bryan attempted to glide to shallow water and the plane dived propellor first, embedding the engine in the hard sand, leaving the cockpit in which the flyers were seated suspended at right angles in the surface of the water.

They were rescued in a small motor boat commandeered by a patrolman.

Fallon Argues His Own Motion

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 25.—William J. Fallon, criminal lawyer whose trial in Federal court on a charge of jury bribing got under way here today with a selection of a jury, surprised the court shortly after the taking of testimony started by personally moving for dismissal of the indictment on constitutional grounds.

Fallon made the motion, supporting it by argument, which, he said, would consume some time.

It was the first time the lawyer has supplanted his attorney, R. J. Shanahan, heretofore confining himself to frequent conferences with his counsel.

The jury to try the case was selected only after a special panel had been exhausted and additional talesmen had been summoned. Fallon took an active part in this phase of the proceedings, often calling his counsel to make suggestions.

The accused lawyer intently followed the opening statement of Assistant United States Attorney Millard. When Millard made a statement that seemed vulnerable to Fallon, the defendant would rapidly note them on a pad.

Andrew Street To Be Asphalted

The board of public works Thursday evening directed Superintendent Darrow to establish a grade and lay asphalt pavement on Andrew street from Broadway to Mary's avenue. The matter came up when a request to have the work done was received from the common council, where it had been brought up by Alderman U. G. Edinger of the Ninth ward. The alderman from the Ninth ward called attention to the fact that Andrew street was badly in need of repairs and that owing to the fact that it was the main street leading in to the Benedictine Hospital it should have attention at once.

British Bankers Oppose Plan

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, July 25.—An agreement is near on the dispute between the international bankers and the French representatives to the allied conference on the Dawes plan, it was learned from semi-official sources this afternoon.

A plan, offering the bankers satisfactory security for their proposed $200,000,000 loan to Germany and satisfying the French demands for right to protect France in case of default, has practically been agreed, it was reported.

The only opposition comes from the British bankers, it was said.

drug stores of 63rd street. Goldstein confirmed Mayer's account of the conversation and the trip.

The third reporter on the trip, which was conducted throughout by Loeb, was James Mulroy. He said that on the trip he asked Loeb:

"Dick, you knew this Franks boy, what kind of a chap was he? Was he the kind that would put up a fight and compel his kidnappers to kill him?"

"He replied," said Mulroy, "'If I were going to murder anybody, Bobby Franks is just the kind of a cocky little—'."

Loeb stared steadily at Mulroy as the reporter gave his testimony.

"You may cross-examine," said Crowe.

There was a hurried conversation between Darrow, Bachrach and the rest of the defense counsel. Apparently there was some argument as to whether there should be cross-examination.

Resented Hearing Epithets Quoted.

It was not the testimony of the reporters as to how he had aided them that Loeb apparently resented. While Mayer was telling how he had discussed the case with Loeb on the campus and of going around to the drug stores, the 19 year old student laughed outright and seemed to get a great deal of enjoyment from the recital.

Loeb would nudge Leopold and they would whisper and then they would both grin broadly.

But when Mulroy testified as to the vile epithet applied to little Bobby Franks by Loeb the latter shook his head angrily. There were more angry shakes when Goldstein quoted him concerning the "stringing up" that should be meted out to "guys who would do that."

After the reporters had finished and the state had put a half dozen policemen who told of checking up on the confessions of Leopold and Loeb and finding the wearing apparel of Bobby buried in the sand, Justice Caverly adjourned court for the noon recess until 2 p. m.

$25 Prize for Leap Year Play

Some time ago Admiral Francis J. Higginson offered a prize of $25 for the best one-act play including a leap year scene to be written by one of the Y. W. C. A. girls. The names of the authors did not appear on the copy of their productions, the judges, Miss Sarah Horton, Mrs. Carolyn B. Dickinson, Miss Eleanor Chipp, Mrs. Quackenbush, Mrs. Williams Carter, and Admiral Higginson, drawing the names of the authors after deciding upon the prize winner.

Miss Nan Rodie, one of the most popular of the young ladies of the Y. W. C. A. and an equally popular employe of the New York Telephone Company, won the prize by her one-act play, "How Sally Got a Husband." The prize was awarded to this play because of the humorous and clever lines, the splendid action making it very playable and its lack of amateurishness, and was given to Miss Rodie on Thursday evening.

The play is the story of the life of two girls and their beaux. Sally has always been tied tight by her mother's apron-strings either to her mother or father and has never had a beau. Her admiration for and wonder at her friend Becky about to be married leaves her dissatisfied. Becky, being a true friend, suggests a means of helping Sally to outwit her mother, who is attending a missionary meeting, and also gives her instructions as to the best way to propose to the one boy of their acquaintance who Sally really admires. During the rehearsal of the proposal Becky's finance and Sally's possible beau appear quietly and listen to the performance, and Sally's beau promptly accepts Sally without further or more embarrassing proposal on her part.

Miss Rodie has shown considerable talent and the play will be given at the Y. W. C. A. this fall.

Another play that received honorable mention was "Leap-Year Diaries."

Firpo's Friend Must Go Home

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 25.—With none of the hurrah which marked her attempt to enter this country, Senorita Blanca Lurdes, "secretary" to Luis Angel Firpo, left these shores yesterday, a deportee.

And the only person connected with Firpo's retinue to see her off was Senor Carbone, manager for the "Wild Bull." He managed to get into the senorita's state room, but he made a hurried exit—the reception was not an enthusiastic one. Hundreds of hot words floored him for the count.

Reporters were more lucky. They were not permitted to see the "visiting secretary." The immigration inspector who had her under his wing stood guard against interviews.

The senorita came from Ellis Island where she had been detained after her passport difficulty when she arrived with the Argentine fighter, in a tug, was placed on the Ward liner Esperenza and sailed for Cuba. No one knew where Firpo was when the lady sailed. No one explained his absence.

And so ended the senorita's endeavor to enter the land of liberty.

DAINTY UNDERTHINGS THIS COMING SEASON.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Colors will be better than ever for silk lingerie this coming season, and georgette is a fabric to be considered. The demand nowadays is for peach and flesh color, with numerous other colors such as green, maize, and light blue taking second place.

Lingerie collections are essentially lacy ones, and are notable for their interesting combinations of laces such as Alencon, binche, some Venise, and some filet and Irish, and the latter two generally in very small touches. The ochre tones are favored decidedly, in the laces used.

Net is also registered and is especially effective when used in color on white. A new little embroidery attracts attention also done in pastel shades and in cross-stitch simulation. Fagoting joining narrow folds of silk in an entire yoke or other section is also introduced.

As a rule, sets comprise four garments, gowns, step-in chemise, vest and step-in drawer. There is no one style tendency to be noted as to necklines, although several of the most effective have quite a deep rectangular opening.

Bateau and round lines are included, and several are finished with little epaulet cap sleeves. In the case of the more elaborate interpretations, the three-quarter tunic line is hinted at in the placement of lace or embroidered medallions toward the bottom of the gown. In one striking instance, the square neckline with short ribbon straps over the shoulders is accompanied by a vestee of embroidered net, and lace insertion to a point about three-quarters down the garment, where two embroidered net medallions are set in.

Foretelling the Weather

The weather bureau says that the forecasting of weather for more than a few days in advance is attended with great uncertainty. For this reason the national weather bureaus in various countries do not attempt detailed forecasts of the weather for more than a week in advance. Beyond a week the condition of the weather cannot be foretold according to reliable and scientific principles.

His Off Day.

Bobby was of an inquiring turn of mind, but mother usually managed to answer his questions.

"Why does daddy go to town every day?" he asked on one occasion.

"To work, so that you and I can have good dinners," mother replied, promptly.

Next day, as Bobby sat down to dinner, he looked disparagingly at the fare provided, then turned an accusing eye on father.

"You didn't do much today, did you?" he remarked.

Colonials Pound Out 15 Safeties

And Beat Tannersville-Red Sox Tribe At Poughkepsie 7 to 5—Rube Sent To Showers—Colonial Dugan Plays Stellar Role—Play Today At Tannersville.

The Schirick rifles started to crack for the first time this week, Thursday afternoon at Poughkeepsie and as a result the Poughkeepsie Red Sox-Tannersville ball club found itself on the short end of a 7-5 score at the end of eight innings of play, when the game was called on account of darkness. The local players made fifteen hits, including two home runs, and six of which came in the fourth inning, resulting in six runs.

Besides winning the game the Colonials also had the great satisfaction of driving Rube Forsythe out of the box in the fourth inning after they had made five successive hits from his offerings. Harris took the New Paltz hurlers place on the mound.

Jack Warhop, the Indian who did some hurling for the Colonials last year, was on the mound for the local club and although he was touched up for eight hits managed to keep them fairly well scattered, except in the fourth inning when the Lackey aggregation put three runs across the rubber.

The Fourth Inning.

The fourth inning was a big inning for both clubs but it was just a little bit bigger for the Colonials than for the Red Sox. It was in this inning that the Colonials got six runs, and it was in this inning that they drove Rube Forsythe from the mound, and it was also in this inning that Leo Dugan developed into a real hero. Leo came to bat in this stanza with the bases loaded and immediately found the range of the left field fence for a circuit clout. Flynn stings off by coming through with a single. Schwab walked, Coyle hit to Ebert at short, forcing Schwab at second, but Flynn went to third on the play and Coyle reached first. Robins hit a grounder to Krunemaker who got Flynn at the plate. Warhop then singled, filling the bases. Dugan was the next man up and came through with his home run clout. Deegan did the same thing, also sending the ball over the left field barrier. McCue and Raskin both came through with singles and then it was that the Sox management decided that the wisest thing to do would be to let Forsythe finish the game out on the bench. Harris then took the mound and Flynn greeted him with a single, scoring McCue. The bases were again loaded when Schwab was hit by a pitched ball but the session was over when Coyle grounded out to Sandy.

Two doubles, one by Len Dugan and the other by Shannon, and a home run by Ebert gave Tannersville three of the runs back in their half of the fourth.

The last run of the game was scored in the fifth inning when Harris sent one of Warhop's offerings over the fence for another home run.

The Red Sox scored the first run of the game in the second inning but the Colonials evened matters up in their half of the third.

After the fifth inning both of the pitchers seemed to gain in effectiveness and neither one of the teams found it possible to push any more runs over the plate.

Play Again Today.

The two clubs will meet again this afternoon when they cross bats at Tannersville. The series now stands 4-3 in favor of the Colonials and the Schirickmen are anxious to make it 5-3. Culloton will very likely do the hurling for the Colonials while Suhre will probably receive the assignment from the Tannersville management.

Big Noise, Little Cause

The noise in the receiver of the telephone apparatus is made by the vibration of a diaphragm, but it is hard to conceive the minuteness of this vibration. A scientific person has recently undertaken to measure this agitation of the diaphragm and has arrived at the conclusion that it is no more than one thirty-fifth part of the millionth of an inch.

Carpentier Says He Was Fouled

Tunney Gives French Idol a Severe Lacing and Bout is Stopped in Fourteenth—Frenchman in Fine Shape Displayed Unexpected Gameness.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, July 25.—Carpentier, who has an uncanny penchant for wiggling off the hook, has managed again to make a knockout "technical" and today is screaming aloud he was fouled, robbed and outraged.

His claim this time is backed by stouter stuff than his cries of double cross by Siki and the twisted ankle alibi with Gibbons. No one saw the blow about which he complains. The French right-wheeler was bent over, his back to the referee, his chin on Tunney's shoulder. Tunney whaling upward at his concaved mid-section, came up and hit him. Maybe the hit was low, maybe it wasn't. Georges had struck Tunney below the belt several times in earlier rounds and had been forgiven.

Carpentier dropped after he had straightened up, then writhed about on the canvas with an indescribable expression of agony on his handsome features There was no count. Everyone stood in confusion. Then the bell rang. The fallen man was helped to his stool, where he hung on the lower rope, his features twisting. Descamp was calling foul at the top of his lungs and begging, demanding, pleading, groaning that the referee examine the aluminum guard.

No water was thrown on Carpentier. The shrill fifteen second whistle tore the air. The seconds withdrew. The bell clanged. Carpentier, bent over and with the mien of tortured suffering, made a move as though to put up his hands, but fell of their own weight. The referee pushed Tunney aside and waved the fight off. Carpentier sank down on his haunches and lay limp.

This after an exhibition of gameness by Carpentier which no one had suspected. Brilliant, dashing and picturesque fighter that he always has been even in defeat, he had never given reason to hope that after he had been battered down by a thousand punches, he would swing on the referee who was stopping the fight, and leap into the young butcher who was punching him into a pulp.

That tenth was the greatest fighting round, perhaps, ever seen; more thrilling even than either of the Dempsey-Firpo tri-minutes. Carpentier had been holding his own and was fast, snappy and flashy, when he stepped into a right and left hook to the jaw and went down. Up again, his eyes glassy, he took a right and flopped. He staggered up, senseless and silly, and Tunney hit and hit and hit him.

The referee laid his hand on Carpentier. That woke him up. He swung at him and with the same motion tore at Tunney and weakly but grimly landed with his classic right. The crowd was on its feet. Down again went Georges, on one knee, from a right uppercut against which he had no defense. Descamps leaped on the ring-edge with a sponge held aloft. A policeman, excited, dragged him down. Carpentier was up again and lashing out. As the bell rung, Tunney hit him forty times and the Frenchman was swaying like a broken orchid in a wind. Tunney stepped aside. Carpentier collapsed in a heap. He was carried to his corner.

On the eleventh Carpentier was still dull eyed and groggy and wobbly. He weathered the twelfth and the thirteenth but was going fast. He had lost his distance and whip as well as his sting. But he hung on. In truth, he was even doing most of the leading. Tunney was backing about, waiting for an opening and still afraid or ashamed to tear loose. The fourteenth looked like the end but Carpentier was still on his pins and his eyes were beginning to brighten. Then came the clinch and the exchange at the ropes when the alleged low punch was struck.

Anyway, while the fight lasted the flash of the superlative fighting man was a surprise and a sensation. The whole crowd had been for Tunney but switched almost to a man for Carpentier, a foreigner, and cheered like maniacs until the sudden and disappointing finale.

Carpentier was in great shape outwardly and seemed to have the heart of a lion under the pink skin of a movie sheik. He looked better and worked faster and kickier than in his battle with Dempsey and was four men like the one who limped to the finish with Gibbons. When he was at his worst he was at his greatest, a new role for the former lightheavy king, who had heretofore been a bobcat winner and a crow loser.

As for Tunney, he is young, strong and willing but has no class. Neither is he murderous enough to ever become a great card. He seemed industrious but not vicious when he had the foreigner apparently helpless. And letting him get back his wind and clear his head was extremely unchampionly, though it did seem a decent thing to do; but Dempsey wouldn't, and Leonard wouldn't and surely Carpentier wouldn't.
